ABOUT IDALIA

Idalia School District RJ-3, home of the Wolves, serves 143 students from preschool through 12th grade in Idalia, Colorado. Idalia is a tight-knit community in northeastern Colorado, about 15 miles from the Kansas border. It has a local reputation as the “Jewel of the Plains”.

With a low student-teacher ratio, the district fosters a close-knit, supportive learning environment focused on academic excellence and community engagement. The district boasts an “Accredited with Distinction” rating, which is assigned to the highest performing districts in Colorado.

Students benefit from a strong curriculum, extracurriculars like Future Farmers of America (FFA), Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), and a proud tradition of athletic success, including state championships in six-man football and girls' basketball.

In 2013, the community came together to build a modern K-12 facility, reflecting its dedication to education. Idalia School District embodies the spirit of the wolves—resilient, strong, and committed to student success.
